Fact Sheet

Observing challenging behaviours where they occur

The home consultation enables us to get to the heart of a person's unwanted behaviours by observing the behaviours where they occur; whether at home, school or another environment.

Our philosophy is to educate all people involved in the child's life so that each of those people can understand how another person experiences the world. Often unwanted behaviour occurs in the educational setting so it is important to carry the newly acquired skills through to that environment.

Consultations are useful to anyone who is having difficulties with everyday life, regardless of whether they have a formal diagnosis. They may include, but are not restricted to, people who have an autism spectrum disorder, depression, eating disorders or anxiety.

What?

The home consultation consists of one 50-minute consultation.

Where possible, Fabic includes not only the client during the consultation, but also those impacted by the challenging behaviour (e.g. carers, relatives, partners, educators).

When?

Our clinicians are available for home observations on Monday, Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays. Please contact Fabic to arrange an appointment time.

Where?

Consultations take place at the home, school address or wherever the unwanted behaviour is occurring.
